An Unfortunate Career.

Those who aspire to positions where the glittering glare of worldly renown pampers and feeds the soul, have many sad examples of the miseries that pertain to exalted stations. That the brilliant mansions of earth's proudest Emperors have in all ages been the scenes of care and perplexities, the history of the world illustrates with most vivid clearness. "Uneasy is the head that wears a crown," is but the common experience of the most illustrious rulers. In the short and thrilling history of Princess Charlotte is a fearful realization of the truth of history, and a warning to ambitious aspirers. History is enlivened by another romance of thrilling interest, and a fearful example of the fickleness of fortune is exhibited by the mournful story of the perishing hopes of the would be Emperor of Mexico. Our readers will probably take an interest in the history of one whom misfortune has marked as its own, one whose descent is rapid from the throne to obscurity, and perhaps contempt. While America was involved in civil strife, a tempting bait which a European emperor could not resist, was offered in the confused condition of Mexican affairs. Maximilian a man of many noble qualities, impelled by the dazzling offer of an Empire, accepted Napoleon's friendly services and prepared to control the affairs of a nation which did not kindly nor readily accept his authority. The career which opened up to Maximilian, offering such brilliant imaginary prospects has proved one of the saddest and most unfortunate histories that the world has produced.

In the Princess Charlotte, the aspiring Emperor found a most useful aid and most devoted companion. All that a heroic woman's ingenuity could devise, and all that her wonderful courage prompted her to do, she executed with masterly ability. She won even from the opposing elements of the new Empire, an admiration that was well deserved. To build up and strengthen the Mexican cause was the constant idea of her life, and with heroic energy up to the very date of the decayed and fallen fortunes, did she continue thus to act. When it was found by Napoleon at the close of our war, that the hope for a future Empire was blasted, and his attempt at Mexican rule had proven unprofitable he began to withdraw his influence from the fickle fabric, and his aid which had been the principal support of the Empire, left it a tottering and falling ruin. It was then that Princess Charlotte, went to the Emperor, urging with all of woman's eloquence and with unavailing paths for that aid which Napoleon sternly refused to give. The ungrateful projector of the Mexican scheme refused to prolong the stay of his troops, or to give any national aid to the unfortunate cause. From Napoleon, she went to others upon whom she thought she had the claims which her religion and friendship entitled to attention, but failure still attended her efforts. Determined to rescue her dearest earthly friend from disaster and to repair the ruinous condition of the Mexican Empire, Charlotte proposed using her own private fortune for the purpose.

And then came the cruel blow which ended the long train of disasters by the refusal of her guardians to intrust her own fortune to her keeping, and in the flight of reason, the loss of that intellect which had nourished such brilliant and ambitious projects. The crushing blow which Napoleon has given to a cause which he created will bring upon him the execration of mankind. The crazed and unfortunate Empress is a sad subject for his reflection; and if, as has been reported he is so near death's door, his last days will be embittered by the memory of his own ingratitude. For the mournful subject of his ill treatment, the world will ever entertain a profound sorrow, notwithstanding the daring schemes whose failure, caused the loss of intellect, and shattered forever the hope of the brilliant Princess and the ambitious Maximilian.

The Editor of a highly respected religious journal in entering upon the duties of his office, seems rather undecided as to the use of the editorial "we." He uses in the same sentence both "I" and "we," closing with the hope that we shall succeed. We hope so.

There is in the Treasury of Kentucky at this time, one million, three hundred and thirty six thousand one hundred and fifty dollars.

Bishop Andrew, of the M. E. Church, South, says in a letter to the Baltimore Methodist that extensive and powerful revivals are in progress in the vicinity of Athens Ga.

FILIAL.—The Cincinnati Commercial says "Forney will be less ferocious when he gets in office." He will mind his "paw."

Southern Relief.

To the Ministers and Members of the Kentucky Conference:

DEAR BRETHREN: I have been rejoiced to hear that you have formed a Relief Association in your Conference, having special reference to the necessities of Ministers in the bounds of the Georgia Conference. Your brethren in this part of our Master's Vineyard appreciate your generous kindness, and in their behalf I take this occasion to lay the facts before you, and to solicit your active co-operation. It has pleased God to afflict us this year with a very general and destructive drought. The fragments of our broken fortunes, saved from the wreck of war, we had hoped, by industry and economy, to improve to a self-sustaining point through the blessing of God, upon the fruits of the earth. He, in His infinite wisdom, has otherwise ordered, and now thousands of our people know not where to obtain bread to support life until another harvest-season. Our Ministers, in many sections, impoverished in a greater degree than the people whom they serve, are forced to entertain the unwelcome and disagreeable thought of abandoning their fields of labor. They are forced to consider this course, not from any motives of ease, or self interest, but from absolute want. To contract our field of labor; to diminish the number of flocks of the flock, we feel to be a disaster whose results no man can estimate. Timely aid, that will help us to bear the sacrifices and toils of another year, by the blessing of God, will enable us to maintain our ground, and preserve the already gathered fruits of many years' labor and suffering. God has blessed you with plenty. Will not He reward you out of His abundant mercy, if you open your hands and help to supply the wants of our distressed Ministers, their wives and children, who are even now crying aloud for the want of bread? In your happy homes abundant blessings are scattered; in ours, great famine haunts our door-steps, and strikes us with apprehension and terror. We feel assured that you will respond to the appeal of your brethren in Christ, and that many a heart will be made glad, and the blessings of Heaven will descend upon you, who prepare these Servants of God to go forth and sow the seeds of eternal life.

You can forward your contributions, either in money or provisions, according to the resolution of your Conference—the provisions to the Central Depot, in Lexington, Ky., and whatever sums of money may be collected, to Rev. C. W. Miller, at Millersburg, or directly to myself, at Atlanta, Ga. The amounts so contributed will be duly acknowledged by our Conference, at its approaching session in Americus, Ga., on the 28th of November. The acknowledgments will also be made in full in our Church papers in Macon, Nashville and Louisville.

Earnestly asking your attention and aid in this worthy cause, I am,
Yours, in the Gospel of Christ,
W. P. HARRISON,
Pastor Wesley Chapel, Atlanta, Ga.

A LITTLE BOY FRIGHTENED TO DEATH.—One of the most touching scenes I ever heard of transpired in Madison to-day, and was related to me by an eye-witness. It was as follows:

A son of Waldo Abeel, of Madison, was frightened to death. He was playing with another boy about his own age, on the steps of the residence of Mr. Abeel, when a gentleman shall I say? no, a monster in human form, a very thoughtless man, passing by, pitched at the boys, and told them that he would catch them and shut them up unless they ran into the house. They both ran for their lives. Mr. Abeel's son fell upon the floor in paroxysms. When he came to so as to know anything, he begged of his mother not to let the man catch him, and he would never go on the steps again. "I never will do it again, I never will do it again," exclaimed the poor little sufferer, and immediately went into another fit. The reaction of the system brought on a dysentery, from which he never recovered. Nor did he recover from his fright. He appeared to be conscious by spells, but whenever he came to he would beg of his parents not to let the man catch him, promising never to go on the steps again. At last he appeared to be conscious that he must die. He would then say, "O papa, don't let me die. I will never go on the steps again." And thus, my informant says, the child suffered and died. While the lady was relating these facts to me the tears ran down her cheeks. It is not an uncommon thing for other people to frighten children, but they do not think what they are doing. I hope this will teach all who read it a lasting lesson.—Exchange.

THE LEGISLATURE.—What it should do at its next Session.—In every State in the Union except this, there is a law requiring certain legal advertisements to be published in the official county paper, and the subject was referred to last year by many papers in the State, yet no action was taken by our legislature upon the subject. We hope from this day forward every paper in the State will urge the matter with such vigor that the Legislature all over the State may comprehend the importance of the matter, and pass a bill ordering such proceedings in legal cases. This is the only State in the Union where such a law is not in effect, and when all the States save one have adopted a certain law it must be a good one. Reflect upon the matter before you go to Frankfort.—Elizabethtown Banner.

The Oxford (Miss.) Falcon, noticing the result of the recent elections, consoles itself as follows:

We are not without hope. Let the Southern people turn their whole attention to industrial pursuits, build up manufactures, railroads, and all manner of public improvements. Have nothing to do with the Government, but quietly obey the laws, and pay the unjust demands levied upon you in the shape of taxation. Seek no admission into Congress, to be seated in the midst of a bundle of iniquity and corruption.

News Summary.

A letter from Southwestern Missouri describes the religious interest in that region as exceeding anything known for there for many years.

It is said that there have been eight hundred applicants for admission to Washington College, Lexington, Virginia. None are rejected on account of not being able to pay the college fees. General Lee is willing to accept their notes, believing that young men who receive their education under such circumstances will not fail to respond to their obligations whenever they are able.

Col. H. F. Simrall, of Wilkinson county, formerly of this State has been chosen Professor of Law in the University of Mississippi, at Oxford. He is now a member of the State Legislature, and until he assumes the duties of the station the Chair of Law will be filled by Hon. L. Q. C. Lamar.

Rev. A. H. Redford, writing to the Nashville Advocate from Kentucky, relates the following interesting incident. "I was present this morning when the Rev. Elkanah Johnson placed in the hands of Bishop Doggett a check for $2,000—a munificent donation from Miss Lurena Brown, of Flemingsburg, Ky., for the support of the bishop. If this example should be followed largely, our bishops will find that they are not friendless."

A horrible occurrence took place near Quincy, Illinois. Mrs. McClure, the wife of a farmer, supposed to have died on Sunday last, was buried on Monday in a vault belonging to the family. On Wednesday, groans were heard from the vault by the children of the buried woman and an old lady who was with them. Word being sent to the husband and neighbors, they opened the coffin, and found the woman alive. She had torn her hair and bruised herself in vain efforts to escape from her narrow prison. She was taken home, and is now recovering.

A DISGUSTED EDITOR.—The Alliance (O.) Monitor, of the 7th inst., contains the following manifesto, which indicates that the editor is slightly "riled":

TO WHOM IT MAY CONCERN.
Soon after the issue of our paper each week, there is generally from one to half a dozen visiting our sanctum, or printing room, to inquire who wrote various articles which have appeared. If there is a report of a criminal trial, as soon as the fellow gets loose, up he comes to our sanctum, to ascertain who made the report. If we have criticised any action, some one must make inquiry. If we rail out against any Sabbath-breaker, rum-seller, plug ugly, nuisance or nuisance, then some one is certain to visit us to request the name of our informer. If we observe a young man who minds his own business, and say so, some one is sure to call in to ask if he did not insert it as an "advertisement." To all such we say, if you do not desire to be kicked down stairs, keep out of our sanctum. If we are not able to do it, we will hire it done. We are disgusted with these soft heads who consider an editor's time only to be employed in giving information to a set of old grannies. An editor is supposed to have an eye open always, with the purpose to record events, as they transpire. As we have remarked before, we intend to chronicle nothing that is not in strict accordance with the truth. If any thing else finds its way into our paper, we wish to correct it. We alone are responsible for all our editorials, and therefore suggest the propriety, in future, of the busy-bodies and others heeding this advice, and giving us no trouble.
THE EDITOR.

SOUTHERN RELIEF.—We gladly give place to the following communication. The need of the South is very great—our abundance is beyond computation.

TO THE PUBLIC.
Whereas, The Kentucky Conference of the M. E. Church South, at its late session in Winchester, Kentucky, resolved itself into a Southern Relief Society for the purpose of aiding the members of the Georgia Conference to continue their labors during the coming year.

And whereas, Rev. R. M. Messick, John C. Young, and C. T. Messick, of Lexington, Kentucky, were appointed a Central Committee for the Conference at large, notice is hereby given that all contributions in money, provisions, clothing, &c., forwarded to them, will be forwarded to the proper persons.

Provisions, grain, &c., should be addressed to them in care of J. P. Headly & Co., or L. C. Randall & Co., Lexington, Kentucky, and will receive prompt attention.

Persons intending to make contributions will please do so immediately.
All papers friendly to the cause please copy.

COMPENSATION OF KENTUCKY SLAVE OWNERS.—THE COMMISSION.—Dr. Noah S. Moore, of Bourbon county, Dr. Blakely, of Logan county, and a Col. McClesker, of Pennsylvania, have been appointed commissioners to take proof upon and pass claims of owners of slaves enlisted in the army during the war. Only loyal owners get anything—the Government acting on the principle that it is the character of the robbed that renders robbery immoral and improper. What test of loyalty, says the Observer and Reporter, will be made by this Board we are not informed—whether the poll-books, or general reputation, or a certificate from the Board of Trade, or from the delegation to Brownlow's Philadelphia convention will decide. Perhaps the claim agents' influence with the Board may be conclusive. The Board meets in Lexington some time next week. We do not know these commissioners, but trust our citizens may find them courteous and impartial.—Louisville Democrat.

How we Went Down.

Bentonville, the last pitched and general engagement between Joe Johnston and Sherman had been fought, Lee had surrendered and we lay three miles from Raleigh, in obedience to an order from Wheeler to move forward to the point, "feed and rest."

"Tired Nature's sweet restorer, balmy sleep!"

None but a soldier can know how well we were enjoying our siesta—our first cooked meal and regular rest out of the saddle in many days. But it was destined to be short. Horses unsaddled, blankets spread to a warm sun just leaving the zenith—a stillness never known in camp except on those rare occasions when exhausted man and brute together sleep—such was the scene suddenly broken in upon by the clash of arms. Butler's division of Hampton's Virginia cavalry, whose jealousy or envy we had strangely provoked, had passed by as we slept, their rear guard and all, without giving the customary information that we were uncovered to the approach of the enemy, then but a half hour's ride distant. The enemy had been pressing Johnston who was forced marching towards Greensboro' vigorously, for several days, and coming suddenly upon our brigade thus, it would seem at their mercy, with wild yells, gleaming above their heads, they rushed upon us. The Eleventh Texas, being from the order in which we were camped nearest to the foe, rose pistol in hand, and met them on foot. The enemy had made a terrible mistake. He had charged with drawn sabres, a thing the Texans always laughed at. Now, the Rangers mounting in less time than it takes to tell it, with their unerring "navy six," were at work upon the head of their column, and though reinforcements blued the whole back ground, yet too late, for the rout had begun, and only ended when the enemy checked further pursuit by a strongly formed line behind a fence, and the eleven stars of the "lost cause" there went down victorious.—Field and Fire Side.

We copy the following from the Richmond Examiner. We rejoice sincerely at the mitigation of the rigors of Jeff Davis's captivity, and unite most earnestly in the hope that he will be released on his parole, as in our opinion he should have been a good while ago. His continued close confinement is, under all the circumstances, one of the mysteries that we cannot solve:

MR. DAVIS.—The public will learn with much pleasure that the treatment of Mr. Davis, which has been so rigorous for the past eighteen months, has been greatly modified. He is still confined to the limits of the fort, but the guard which stood over his person by day and by night has been removed, and the countless annoyances which a brutal jailer devised for his torture are now at an end. We are glad to hear that Gen. Burton, the present commandant of the fortress, has done what he could, consistently with his duty, to mitigate the sufferings incident to a prolonged captivity, and in every respect has acted in a manner directly the reverse of the base and cruel wretch who preceded him in office.

This act of President Johnson will add greatly to the kind feelings with which his name is mentioned in the South, and we are very sure that the humane and generous of all countries will applaud the proceeding. We cannot think so meanly even of the radicals as to believe that there are not many of them who will be sincerely gratified at what has been done. If this graceful step of the President be followed up, as we hope it may be, by setting Mr. Davis free upon his parole of honor to appear before the Federal Court, we think Government would gain in prestige, and that the effect upon the public feeling of the whole country would be most salutary. Men would begin to realize that the war is over, and base their calculations not upon continued estrangement, but upon a moral accord of the different portions of the country.

THE LORD'S PRAYER.—A maiden knelt in the twilight hour, and clasping her hands, fervently breathed forth: "Our Father who art in Heaven, hallowed be Thy name."

A mother, in deep agony of grief, gazed on her child, sleeping her long last sleep, a smile wreathing her soft lips, and white hands folded across that still and pulseless heart, and kneeling there, the living beside the dead, she prays: "Thy will be done."

As the early beams of the orient gilds the sleeping land, a widow with her suffering little ones, chilled by poverty and woe, bows at the throne of grace, and fervently prays: "Give us this day our daily bread."

An aged father, as his loved and loving boy goes forth from his parental care to brave the cold frowns of life, kneels beside him, on the eve of his departure, and pleads "Lead him not into temptation, but deliver him from evil, for Thine is the kingdom, the power, and the glory, for ever and ever, Amen."

"A certain amount of opposition," says John Neal, "is a great help to man. Kites rise against, and not with the wind. Even a head wind is better than none. No man ever worked his passage anywhere in a dead calm. Let no man wax pale, therefore, because of opposition; opposition is what he wants, and must have to be good for anything. Hardship is the native soil of manhood and self reliance. He that cannot abide the storm without flinching or quailing, strips himself in the sunshine, and lies down by the wayside to be overlooked and forgotten. He who but braces himself to the struggle when the wind blows, gives up when they have done, and falls asleep in the stillness that follows."

GEN. BRECKINRIDGE.—Hon. John C. Breckinridge was at last accounts at Versailles, France. We earnestly hope that the time is not far distant when this gallant and distinguished son of Kentucky will be enabled, by virtue of a general amnesty, to return to his home.

"Beside the nuptial altar bright,
The Bard of Eden sings;

Local Items.

Those who wish some valuable books see the notice of Mr. Henri F. Middleton.

Local news is very scarce in this section. Our people are too moral to fight, fires don't occur and beyond a wedding now and then, all is quiet in Shelby. So mote it be.

We have received an obituary notice which we will publish upon receipt of writers name. Correspondents will please remember that we do not publish anything unaccompanied by the real name of the writer.

We take pleasure in announcing to our patrons and the public that such has been the success of the Sentinel, with the next issue it will be enlarged. As we will print a larger edition than usual, advertisers will find it to their advantage to send in their favors.

THERE IS NO DOUBT but what Coe's Dyspepsia Cure excels all remedies ever discovered for the cure of Dyspepsia, Indigestion, Pain after Eating, Cramps, Colic, and distress in either Stomach or Bowels. The people all speak in the most flattering terms of its merits.

We saw yesterday a letter from Rev. H. A. C. Walker, of South Carolina, who was appointed by the last Kentucky Conference as preacher, in charge of the Shelbyville station. He had just learned of his appointment, at the time the letter was written, and stated that he would be here on the third Sabbath in November. The members of the M. E. Church South may therefore expect their regular pastor next Sabbath. It is singular that the Baptist, Methodist, Christian and Presbyterian churches are all without regular pastors.

THE WESTMINSTER REVIEW—for October, 1866, has come to hand. It contains the following articles, viz: 1. The Irish Church. 2. The Apostles. By Ernest Renan. 3. The English and their Origin. 4. Contemporary Literature. Address The Leonard Scott Publishing Company, 38 Walker street New York.

ADVERTISING.—Judicious Advertising is the sure road to wealth, and he who neglects or wilfully refuses to take advantage of it, is his own destroyer. In this day and age, people travel by Railroad and lightning speed, and to arrest their attention you must get up something attractive. You must show too, by courting public patronage that you desire it. If you sit still and wait to be asked if you wish to sell goods, depend upon it your trade will languish. Printer's ink is the thing to do the work. Merchants try it.

The November number of the American Farmer, published by Worthington & Lewis, 52 S. Gay st., Baltimore, has been received. The various systems of Field Rotation, Three, Four, Five and Seven Field, are fully discussed in the present and previous numbers. These and the several articles on "Clover Culture," "Our Homes," "The value of our Lands," &c., in recent numbers, indicate the thoroughly practical character of the "Old Farmer." While the large amount of matter on Fruit Growing, gathered from the best sources, show how well the "Pioneer" Journal keeps itself at the head of the Agricultural and Horticultural progress of the day.

Last Monday was Court day in town, and the people were here in largenumbers. For a crowd on Court days, Shelbyville can't be beat. There was more stock in the market than we have seen for months, but we are without a report from the auctioneer. We give the following as some of the prices obtained. Good yearling cattle $35. Ten head of two year old cattle at $59 50, per head. Green river cattle averaged about 3 cts. The following sales of property were made by the Master Commissioner, viz: Mrs. Burnett's house and lot, $3,245; Mrs. Shannon's house and lot, $1,200; H. Frazier's store house and dwelling, $4,400; Tucker property, $1,000. All of the property is in Shelbyville. Mr. Henri F. Middleton also sold his residence, at private sale for $4,300. The Farm of Edward Bull deceased, 107 acres at $55 per acre; House and lot in Bagdad, at $2,075.

SHARP BOY.—Any one who reads the following will believe implicitly that the witness did not remember:

Action for work done in cutting ditch on defendant's land. Plea: payment and set off in bacon and corn meal.

Plaintiff's son on the stand—recollects the ditching perfectly, but seems to forget all about the bacon.

"You say your daddy did all this ditching? Do you know what he got in pay for it?" inquired Col. B., for defendant.

"He never got nothin, as I ever heard on, that's what he never got," answered the disinterested witness.

"Didn't your daddy get worn and bacon from the defendant, in pay for that ditching?"

"Never heard of his gettin' no corn nor bacon."

"What did your daddy and his family live on that summer?"

"Vittles, most."

"What sort of vittles?"

"Well, meat and bread, and some whiskey."

"Where did he get that meat and bread?"

"Well, fust from one, and fust from another."

"Didn't he get some of it from defendant?"

"He mought."

"I know he might, but did he? that's the question!"

"Well, he mought, and then agin, you know he mought!"

(With considerable excitement, and in tones of thunder) "answer the question, sir; and no more of this trifling with your oath. Did your daddy, or did he not get corn and bacon from the defendant for ditching?"

"Well now, he mought; it dont occur adzactly, you know."

Here his honor interferred, and with a stern, injudicial roar, addresses witness thus:

"Witness, you must answer the question, or the court will be compelled to deal with you. Can't you say yes or no?"

"I reckon."

"Well, then answer yes or no. Did or did not your daddy get corn and bacon from the defendant at the time referred to?" inquired the court.

(Now fully aroused and conscious of his danger.) "Well judge, I can't adzactly remember, you know, essein' as how it has dun bin gone and eat up, but," (planting himself firmly, as one determined to out with it) "to the best of my recollection, if my memory serves me right, he mought, and then agin he mought."

Some sixty years ago there lived on the borders of civilization a man who had an aged, infirm, and blind father.

The old man frequently broke the crockery on which his food was served. His son's wife complained of it, and the son at last determined to take a block of wood and hew out a tray or trough, on which to feed his father.

Accordingly he took his axe and went to the forest, followed by his little son. He found a poplar that looked as if it would suit his purpose, and began to cut out a block of the desired size.

Having swung his axe a few moments he became weary, and his son said, "Father, what are you going to make?"

The father replied, "I am going to make a trough for your grand-father to eat out of." The little boy loved his grand-father very much, and supposed it all very kind; and said, "I am so glad; won't it be nice? Father, when you get old and blind, I will make a trough for you."

The father, conscience-stricken, and fearing sorrow for himself, took up his axe, returned home and ever after seemed to treat his aged parent kindly.

Must it not be very romantic to be on your knees before a lovely one of Love's daughters, heaving up a torrent of sweet words between her glowing, parted lips, raising roses on her cheeks by the acre, bringing tears of humid pleasure to her eyes, at the identical moment when she is going to swoon away in your arms, to hear her anxious mother cry, "you Sal, have you fed the pigs?"

A young lady from a boarding-school being asked at the table if she would like some more cabbage replied: "By no means; gastronomic satiety admonishes me that I have arrived at the ultimate culinary degeneration consistent with the code of Esculapius." As she drew back from the table it was concluded she meant she had "eat a heap."

A clergyman lately traveling in the oil region saw a child stumbling and falling. He kindly picked her up saying: "Poor little dear, are you hurt?" when she cried out: "I ain't poor dad has done struck ile!"

A boy having got his fathers snuff-box, indulged so immoderately that he sneezed himself to pieces. His remains having been gathered up, a coroner's inquest was had over them, when the enlightened jury returned a verdict of "snuffed out."

SLEEPY OR NOT SLEEPY.—"I declare, mother," said a pretty little girl, in a pettish little way, "tis too bad, mother! You always send me to bed when I am not sleepy, and you always make me get up when I am sleepy."

With love, the heart becomes a fair and fertile garden, glowing with sunshine and warm hues, and exhaling sweet odors, but without it, it is a bleak desert covered with ashes.

"My dear," said an affectionate spouse to her husband, "am I not your only treasure?" "Oh! yes, was the cool reply, "and I would willingly lay it up in heaven."

A Western editor says that henceforth he will not publish marriage notices for nothing, but will be glad at any time to announce the death of his friends.

Bashfulness is more frequently connected with good sense; while on the other hand, impudence is usually the effect of downright stupidity.

Some people think that the beast with ten horns in Revelation, is intended to represent the sin of drunkenness.
